- A business-friendly environment

The community, originally named Doghide, was founded in 1902 and named after the Doghide River which flows through the Town. With the arrival of the railway, the Town was renamed Tisdale in honour of F.W. Tisdale, a prominent employee of CN Rail.

Did you know?

Englishman Henry Kelsey, an early Canadian explorer and well-travelled employee of the Hudson Bay Company, originally explored the area in 1690.

Tisdale is the hometown of Brent Butt, comedian, actor, writer and star of the hit Canadian TV series Corner Gas.

One of the largest operating farm sales in in Canadian history, Miner Creek Farms, is in the RM of Tisdale.

Economic Indicators

Tisdale's strategic location at the junction of two highways and two rail lines – in the heart of the province's most productive agricultural area – provides a solid foundation for local industry. Tisdale businesses and industries enjoy access to major North American trade corridors. Tisdale is just over 2 hours northeast of the province's largest city, Saskatoon.

Agriculture and Agri-Processing

The Tisdale region is an agriculture powerhouse with a long history of successful crop production. Tisdale is in the northeast portion of Saskatchewan's fertile black soil district and is a major producer of cereals, oilseeds and pulse crops. Year after year, producers deliver high quality cereals (wheat, durum, oats, barely, rye), oilseeds (canola, flax), pulse crops (lentils, peas), forage and specialty crops.

Producers

Producers in the Tisdale area know how to make good use of the short but intense growing season. They have adopted innovative and sustainable agricultural practices. They were early adopters of GPS technology and continue to put advanced technology to work in their fields. Many are farming land settled by their great, great grandparents in the early 1900s.

Many area farmers are graduates of the University of Saskatchewan's highly regarded College of Agriculture and Bioresources. They use their expertise to produce safe crops for food, feed, fuels and pharmaceuticals. The result is a diversified crop base, high quality and high yield crops, and sustainable dryland farming practices that ensure the land is healthy and productive for future generations.

Honey Capital of Saskatchewan

Saskatchewan produces approximately 25% of Canada's honey and Tisdale is the Honey Capital of Saskatchewan with a prominent honey production industry since the 1940s. Long, warm summer days with plenty of canola and alfalfa blossoms mean honeybees can produce prolific honey flows. The average yield per hive in Saskatchewan is twice the world average.

Grain Collection Hub

Tisdale is the largest grain collection centre in Saskatchewan. There are 6 inland terminals in the region – Viterra Valparaiso and Tisdale, Richardson Pioneer, Parrish & Heimbecker (Tisdale North and Tisdale South), and the Scoular Company. Together, they handle over 3.5 million tons of grain and process up to 100,000 metric tonnes of pulse and speciality crops a year.

The northeast is a fantastic region for growing crops like canola, oats, and faba beans. These crops thrive in the region's growing conditions which include moist, cooler temperatures and lots of sunlight.

Agri-Processing

Value-added processing has been identified as a key opportunity for the region. C-Merak Industries is a prime example of a local producer that is seizing the opportunity by buying, selling and trading grains and pulses and adding value by developing food grade ingredients.

Cumberland College offers an Agriculture Sciences Certificate.

Upon completion of this certificate program, students have the option to transfer into year two of Lakeland College's Crop Technology Diploma program.
